“Let’s Talk Meth” awareness campaign launched to address growing meth use in Sacramento County

Meth is the most widely abused substance in Sacramento County. It is time to take action and offer solutions to this problem. As a campaign for the Sacramento County Methamphetamine Coalition in partnership with the Sacramento County Division of Behavioral Health Services, Substance Use Prevention and Treatment Services (formerly Alcohol and Drug Services), Let’s Talk Meth offers drug education, resources, and support for any person in need.

As community members and public service workers, your voice can be influential in promoting and educating Sacramento County on the impact of meth. With the rise of COVID-19, the public has become more engaged and conscious about health in general. There has never been a better time to rally our individual communities to continue the conversation about methamphetamine use in Sacramento County and the treatment programs and support groups available to anyone who wants it.

Within this toolkit, you will find resources to encourage stakeholders to support and educate their communities about the Let’s Talk Meth campaign:
